

Kerri Hunter

Kerri Hunter has over 30 years of experience in the Accounting and Finance Industry. She currently serves as Director, Financial Planning and Analysis at Armanino LLP, an Accounting, Business Consulting, and Technology Solutions firm, where she is responsible for analyzing and supporting the financial direction of the firm. Kerri also serves as the Chair of the Volunteer Vacations Committee, which is a component of the Armanino Foundation, the charitable organization of the firm. Prior to Armanino, Kerri spent 15 years in various finance positions at The Dallas Morning News, ranging from Senior Financial Analyst to Director, Financial Planning & Analysis. She transitioned from Accounting to Finance while employed for 5 years at Dr Pepper/Seven Up. Kerri has an undergraduate degree in Accounting from University of North Texas as well as an MBA in Corporate Finance from the University of Dallas. Outside of work, she is active in the community, serving as Board Treasurer of Raising the Bridge, a youth development non-profit organization. She also serves on the Community Impact Committee of Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority, Incorporated. Kerri currently resides in Mesquite, Texas with her husband, and they have two young adult children.